

SQUABBLE OVER COUNTY DOCTOR

The Appointment of Physician Causes Dissension Among Republican Leaders.

LEADERS SELECT WHITNEY

COMMISSIONERS MACKAY AND CLINTON FAVOR ODELL.

Following the recent settlement of the question as to who would distribute the pie, the paramount issue among the Republicans in Salt Lake county is now to whom shall the pie be distributed? And even more paramount than this broad inquiry is the question of the appointment of a county physician.

The whole Republican machine has been boiling over this affair until some of the expert manipulators from the state have taken a hand, and the board of county commissioners are now in the vortex of a struggle which will leave sore spots, no matter which way it goes.

Dr. E. W. Whitney, who was, until two years ago, the county physician, wants to have his old job back and the Republican organization shares that desire with him. The only obstacle between Dr. Whitney and the appointment is a matter of one or two county commissioners, who have the appointing power.

John C. Mackay, who slipped into office on the tag and the Republican landslide, wants to appoint Dr. F. G. Odell of Murray, and he is ably supported by James E. Clinton, the hold-over member of the board. However, Walter J. Burton, the recruit from Forest Dale, does not want Odell to be county physician. He is willing to back the choice of the county committee by supporting Dr. Whitney.

A petition has been drawn up and is now being signed by Dr. Whitney's friends, calling upon the board of county commissioners to appoint him as physician, to succeed Dr. W. R. Calderwood, the present incumbent, who, strangely enough, does not seem to be involved in the present imbroglio. This petition is signed by the chairman, secretary and members of the Republican county committee, together with the ring-leaders of the party who are not openly allied with the organization.

It is recited that Dr. Whitney, who was in office and that he is entitled to another appointment, not by virtue of his good record so much as for the value of his service rendered his party in the late campaign. Commissioner Mackay would not listen to the appeal for his appointment and he seems to be as strongly supported by Commissioner Clinton.

It is further charged that Commissioner Mackay attended a meeting of candidates and the county committee shortly before the election, when he appointed himself, with other candidates, not to support any one who could not get the endorsement of the county committee. It did not mean, necessarily, that all members of the county committee were required to endorse an applicant for a job, but it did mean that no one who applied could be appointed unless the endorsement of the committee was accessible or available.

Commissioner Mackay pledged himself not to appoint, nor to confirm other appointments, when they were not endorsed by the county committee. The members of that body say that they will not endorse Dr. Odell because he is not a native of the county, and that he is not entitled to the recognition because he did not serve the party as well as he should.

It is planned to have a public meeting and present the petition of Dr. Whitney to the board of county commissioners and fight it out publicly if the board refuses to act upon the petition.

COLLEGE STUDENTS PACK THEATRE AND GIVE JUNE MATHIS OVATION

The remarkable successes of June Mathis, the talented young Salt Lake girl who is starring in "Brewster's Millions," reached a climax in Columbia, Mo., a few days ago, when the University of Missouri students turned out en masse to tender her the greatest reception of her career. When she appeared on the stage wearing the colors of the college the students went wild, the demonstration continuing for several minutes.

The University of Missouri is the alma mater of W. D. Mathis, father of June Mathis. He attended this university as a classmate of Eugene Field, graduating in 1892. When the students learned that the father of the star in "Brewster's Millions" was an alumnus of the college they planned to give her a memorable reception. And they did.

Every seat in the theatre was purchased from pit to gallery. The management of the production received a note from the president of the college asking that Miss Mathis wear the college colors. She was only too glad to grant the request, and the Peggy of "Brewster's Millions" appeared wearing the college colors draped about her gown.

Her appearance was the signal for wild enthusiasm. The audience of college students arose as if by a single impulse and cheered the actress till their throats grew hoarse. It was several minutes before the play was able to proceed.

Following the second act a student in the theatre sent Miss Mathis a large chrysanthemum tied with the college colors. The entire mass of beautiful chrysanthemums was so large that Miss Mathis was unable to get them all in her dressing room.

Miss Mathis comes back to Salt Lake in two weeks, still as Peggy in "Brewster's Millions," in which she has scored her greatest success.

DECEMBER WEATHER DOPE

Official Records of the Past Furnish Material Upon Which to Speculate.

December makes its debut tomorrow, and with the effects of the big two days' snowstorm of last week still felt and visible on every side, people are wondering what kind of weather will greet Salt Lake to wind up the year of 1908.

The Salt Lake weather bureau has compiled some data which covers the weather conditions during the month of December for the past thirty-four years and which is interesting as an aid to "dope" out the weather that will have to be faced during the holidays. It shows the conditions which prevailed, but must not be construed as a forecast for the coming month.

During the past thirty-four years December has had a mean, or normal, temperature of 32 degrees. The warmest month was that of 1889, with an average of 25 degrees. The highest temperature was 81 degrees on Dec. 1, 1874, and the lowest was 19 degrees below zero, on Dec. 25, 1879.

The average precipitation for the month in the thirty-four years has been 1.42 inches, and the average number of days with 0.1 of an inch or more has been 10. The greatest monthly precipitation was 4.27 inches in 1889, and the least monthly precipitation was 0.11 inch in 1878.

The greatest amount of precipitation in any twenty-four consecutive hours was 1.38 inches, on Dec. 14-15, 1888. The greatest amount of snowfall recorded in any twenty-four consecutive hours (record extending to winter of 1874-85) only six inches, on Dec. 23, 1898. The average relative humidity at 6 in the morning has been 73 per cent, and at 6 at night 69 per cent.

The average number of clear days during the thirty-four years has been 11.6, or about one-third cloudy days; nine cloudy days, thirteen. The prevailing winds were from the southeast and the average hourly velocity was 4.3. The highest velocity of the wind was 25 miles from the northwest on Dec. 28, 1901.

POSTOFFICE EMPLOYEES WAIT CHRISTMAS RUSH

Visions of Long Hours and Floods of Packages Confront Carriers and Clerks.

The Christmas rush will be on all this month at the Salt Lake postoffice, and the busy days are scheduled to begin this week.

With the approach of the holidays, a premonition of that tired feeling possesses the mail carriers and postoffice clerks. Visions of long stretches of hours, overtime work and a mass of packages banish thoughts of cheer and happiness from the minds of the postoffice employees.

The first week in December is usually the time in which the largest volume of Christmas presents bound for foreign countries is received. The week marks the coming of the general rush that lasts until after New Year's Day, and each day from now on will heap more labor and trouble on the shoulders of Uncle Sam's men.

Even as early as this date, presents bound for distant points, such as Australia, the Philippines, Asia, Scandinavia and Austria, are beginning to come in. The majority of packages for Great Britain and Ireland, France, Germany and Italy, however, are mailed in this section of the country during the first ten days in December.

In years past postoffices throughout the United States have used ready-made and numbered receipts for registered packages, but the United States postoffice department at Washington is officially sending them out this year as the first time. This innovation is hailed by the postoffices as a blessing for the short cut of receipts saves a vast amount of time and labor for the postal clerks and does away with the custom of compiling receipts at the end of the day while the receipts are being made out, as patrons have been obliged to do in past years.

It is understood that only the larger postoffices in the country will receive the ready-made and numbered receipts. The Salt Lake postoffice is expecting its allotment daily, and a large supply is expected here because of the large amount of foreign registry business transacted during the Xmas season every year.

The miners in the camps around Salt Lake are mainly foreigners and they send the bulk of the foreign mail matter by the postoffice. They, as a rule, look forward to Christmas as the season to remember their kinspeople in distant lands, and will begin to flock into the postoffice with money and packages from now on.

AMUSEMENTS.

As the crowds were leaving the Colonial theatre last evening after the initial performance in Salt Lake of "Pantana," many persons could be heard whistling or cheering the principal comedian, Fred Snook, who is the best man in the house.
